SKIN GOT DRY
PIMPLES BROKE OUT

Could Not Sleep. Red and Itched. Eyebrows Fell Out. Used Cuticura. In One Month Skin Clear. Smooth Like Velvet. Eyebrows Grow.

222 Poplar St., Philadelphia, Pa.—"My husband's skin got dry and pimples broke out. At night he could not sleep. It would burn and swell. His eyebrows were red and they itched. His skin began to peel off his face. It made all his eyebrows fall out.

"He got some soap and ointment but they did not help him. I got the Cuticura Soap and Ointment for him and he put them on.

"He would first wash his face with water as hot as he could stand for about fifteen minutes with a soft sponge and Cuticura Soap, then he put the Ointment on his face and left it on all night. In the morning he would wash it off with the Soap and then put the Ointment on again. He would do this four or five times a day. In one month his skin was clear and now it is smooth like velvet and his eyebrows have come in again." (Signed) Mrs. Robert Fallow, June 12, 1914.

TEAMS BREAK EVEN

Baltimore Takes Morning Contest; Locals Win in Afternoon.

The games between the Baltimore and Connelville Intimore & Ohio clubs at South Connelville yesterday ended in a even break, Baltimore winning the morning game 3 to 2 and the locals taking the second 11 to 7. Both games were featured by terrific hitting. The home run drive of Kenner with two on in the fifth inning of the morning game was one of the longest smashes made on the grounds. Forcible work, the besting star for Baltimore, having a single, two-base and three-base hit in the first game.

Connelville ran away with the second game after Baltimore had them beaten 6 to 1 in the seventh. In this game a series of hits netted them 6 runs and in the next they scored 4 more. Phil's and Young's hitting featured. Back attempted to pitch both games for Baltimore and was hit hard in both games.

Inches who pitched the morning game for the locals was charged with his first defeat of the season. Scores: MORNING GAME.

MARGUERITE LEADS

Defeats Lambert and is Now Alone in First Place.

Marguerite pushed into the lead in the Lynch Cup race yesterday when Lambert was defeated by a 3-2 score. This game was won by Sinky's hit in the ninth inning. Up until that time Lambert had held the lead by a one-run margin. In the ninth with the bases full and two out, Sinky got a hit and the game was won in Marguerite's favor. Had the run been needed the hit could have been made a home run.

A game between Trotter and Leisenring No. 2 has been scheduled for today, and on Wednesday Collier will play at United and Marguerite at Lambert.

HIS EXPERIENCE.

Man Tells How He Has Saved Successfully. A man, on a small salary, who has built up a nice savings account with the First National of Connelville, when asked how he did it, said:

"Many people try to save too much, get discouraged and quit. I did that. Then I started to save a small sum every time I was paid. I've kept that up for years. I think it's the best and easiest way."—Adv.

Rolled in Fresh Cigarettes the World Over

"Bull" Durham introduced a distinctive form of tobacco enjoyment to discriminating smokers throughout the world—popularized the present smart fashion and now universally accepted custom of rolling one's own cigarettes with this pure, mellow tobacco, to meet individual requirements of taste that can be satisfied in no other way.

GENUINE

"BULL" DURHAM SMOKING TOBACCO

The millions of "Bull" Durham smokers are men of wide tobacco experience. They have used tobacco in many forms. They prefer "Bull" Durham in fresh, hand-made cigarettes above all—because of the supreme tobacco satisfaction and wholesome, lasting enjoyment insured by "rolling their own."

"Bull" Durham is distinguished from all other tobaccos by its wonderfully pleasant, unique aroma. This fresh fragrance is combined in "Bull" Durham cigarettes with the most delightful mildness, mellowness and smoothness—a smoke of unusual character.

FREE An Illustrated Booklet, showing correct way to "Roll Your Own" Cigarettes, and a package of cigarette papers, will both be mailed, free, to any address in U. S. on request. Address "Bull" Durham, Durham, N. C.

Cazale paused. "I don't know, but I think somebody brushed past me in the dark. I did think that—but I can't swear to him now."

"Tell us about it."

"You mean that, Scruton? Do you mean that I'm not hearing all that happened? I'm not hearing all that happened? I'm not hearing all that happened?"

"Go ahead," said Scruton. "I'll have a drink when you've done; somebody give me a cigarette meanwhile."

Cazale supplied the cigarette, struck a match, and held it with unfaltering hand. The two men's eyes met strangely across the flame.

"I'll tell you all exactly what happened; you can believe me or not as you like. You won't forget that I know every inch of the ground—except one altered bit that explained itself." Cazale turned to Blanche with a significant look, but she only drew an inch nearer still. "Well, it was in the little creek, where the boat-house is, that I waited for my man. He never came—by the river. I heard the motor, but it wasn't Henry Craven that I wanted to see, but the man who was coming to see him. Eventually I thought I must have made a mistake, or he might have changed his mind and come by road. The dressing-gong had rung; at least I supposed it was that by the time it was almost quite dark, and I landed and went up the path past the back premises to the front of the house. So far I hadn't seen a soul, or been seen by one, evidently; but the French windows were open in what used to be my father's library, the room was all lit up, and just as I got there a man ran out into the flood of light and—"

"I thought you said he brushed by you in the dark," interrupted Toye.

"I was in the dark; so was he in another second; no power on earth would induce me to swear to him. Do you want to hear the rest, Scruton, or are you another unbeliever?"

"I want to hear every word—more than ever."

Toye cocked his head at both question and answer, but inclined it quickly as Cazale turned to him before proceeding.

"I went in and found Henry Craven lying in his blood. That's gospel—it was so I found him—lying just where he had fallen in a heap out of the leather chair at his desk. The top right-hand drawer of his desk was open, the key in it and the rest of the bunch still sticking. A revolver lay as it had dropped upon the desk—it had upon the ink—and there were cartridges lying loose in the open drawer, and the revolver was loaded. I swept it back into the drawer, turned the key and removed it with the bunch. But there was something else on the desk—that silver-mounted luncheon—and a man's cap was lying on the floor. I picked them both up. My first instinct, I confess it, was to remove every sign of manslaughter and to leave the scene to be reconstructed into one of accident—seizure—anything but what it was."

"What Do You Know About Henry Craven's Murder?"

He paused as if waiting for a question. None was asked. Toye's mouth might have been sewn up, his eyes were like lightning driven into his head. The other two simply stared.

"It was a mad idea, but I had some mad," continued Cazale. "I had had the victim alive, and it couldn't chance me that he was dead or dying; that didn't make him a white man, and neither did it necessarily blacken the poor devil who had probably suffered from him like the rest of us, and only struck him down in self-defense. The revolver on the desk made that pretty plain. It was out of the way, but now I saw blood all over the desk as well; it was making into the blotter, and it knocked the bottom out of my idea. What was to be done? I had hesitated already; how could I leave the scene without giving myself away to that extent, and God knows how much further? The most awful moment of the lot came as I hesitated—the dinner gong went off in the hall outside the door! I remember watching the thing on the door to see if it would move."

"Then I lost my head—absolutely. I turned the key in the door, to give myself a few seconds' grace or start; it reminded me of the keys in my hands. One of them was one of those little round brass keys. It seemed familiar to me even after so many years. I looked up, and there was my father's Michael Angelo closet, with its little round brass keyhole. I opened it as the outer door was knocked at and then tried. But my mad instinct of altering every possible appearance, to mislead the police, stuck to me to the last. And I took the man's watch and chain into the closet with me, as well as the cap and luncheon that I had picked up before."

"I don't know how long I was above ground, so to speak, but one of my father's objects had been to make his retreat sound-light, and I could scarcely hear what was going on in the room. That encouraged me; and two of you don't need telling how I got out through the foundations, because you know all about the hole I made myself as a boy in the floor under the office. It took some finding with single matches; but the fear of your neck gives you eyes in your finger ends, and gimlets, too, by Jove! The worst part was getting out at the other end, into the cellar; there were heaps of empty bottles to move, and by one, before there was room to open the mahogany door and to squirm out over the slab; and I thought they rang like a peal of bells, but I put them all back again, and apparently nobody overheard in the scullery."

"The big dog barked at me like blazes—he did again the other day—but nobody seemed to hear him either. I got to my boat, tipped a fellow on the towing path to take it back and pay for it—why haven't the police got hold of him?—and ran down to the bridge over the weir. I stopped a big car with a smart shaver smoking his pipe at the wheel. I should have thought he'd have come forward for the reward that was put up; but I pretended I was late for dinner I had in town, and I let him drop me at the Grand Hotel. He cost me a fiver, but I had on a waistcoat lined with notes, and I'd more than five minutes in hand at Charing Cross. If you want to know, it was the time in hand that gave me the whole idea of doubling back to Genoa; I must have been half-way up to town before I thought of it."

He had told the whole thing as he always could tell an actual experience; that was one reason why it rang so true to one listener at every point. But the sick man's sunken eyes had advanced from their sockets in cumulative amazement. And Hilton Toye laughed shortly when the end was reached.

"You figure some on our credulity!" was his first comment.

"I don't figure on anything from you, Toye, except a pair of handcuffs as a first installment!"

Toye rose in prompt acceptance of the challenge. "Seriously, Cazale, you ask us to believe that you did all this to screen a man you didn't have time to recognize?"

"I've told you the facts."

"Well, I guess you'd better tell them to the police." Toye took his hat and stick. Scruton was struggling from his chair. Blanche stood petrified, a dove under a serpent's spell, as Toye made her a sardonic bow from the landing door. "You broke your side of the contract, Miss Blanche! I guess it's up to me to complete."

"Wait!"

It was Scruton's raven croak; he had tottered to his feet.

"Sure," said Toye, "if you're anything you want to say as an interested party."

"Only this—he's told the truth!"

"Well, can he prove it?"

"I don't know," said Scruton. "But I can!"

"You?" Blanche chimed in there.

"Yes, I'd like that drink first, if you don't mind, Cazale." It was Blanche who got it for him. In an instant, "Thank you! I'd say more if my blessing was worth having—but here's something that is. Listen to this, you American gentlemen: I was the man who wrote to him in Naples. Leave it at that a minute; it was my second letter to him; the first was to Australia, in answer to one from him. It was the full history of my downfall. I got a warning to smuggle it out. That letter was my one chance."

"I know it by heart," said Cazale. "It was that and nothing else that made me leave before the hearing."

"To meet me when I came out!" Scruton explained in a hoarse whisper. "To keep me from going straight to that man, as I'd told him I should in my first letter! But you can't hit these things off to the day or the week; he'd told me where to write to him on his voyage, and I wrote to Naples, but that letter did not get smuggled out. My warden friend got the sack. I had to put what I'd got to say so that you could read it two ways. So I told you, Cazale, I was going straight up the river for a raw—and you can pronounce that two break a couple—but there's another way of spelling that, and it was the other way I meant!" He chuckled grimly. "I wanted you to lie low and let me lie low if that happened. I wanted just one man in the world to know I'd done it. But that's how we came to miss each other, for you timed it to a tick, if you hadn't misread me about the river."

He drank again, stood straighter and found a fuller voice.

"Yet I never meant to do it unless he made me, and at the back of my brain I never thought he would. I thought he'd do something for me, after all he'd done before! Shall I tell you what he did?"

"Got out his revolver!" cried Cazale in a voice that was his own justification as well.

"Pretending it was going to be his check-book!" said Scruton, through his teeth. "But I heard him trying to cock it inside his drawer. There was his special constable's truncheon hanging on the wall—silver mounted, for all the world to know how he'd stood up for law and order in the night of men! I tell you it was a joy to feel the weight of that truncheon, and to see the hero of Trafalgar Square fumbling with a thing he didn't understand! I hit him as hard as God would let me—and the rest you know—except that I nearly did trip over the man who swore it was broad daylight at the time!"

He tottered to the folding-doors, and stood there a moment, pointing to Cazale with a hand that twitched as terribly as his dreadful face.

"No—the rest; you did—the rest you did to save what wasn't worth saving! But—I think—I'll hold out long enough to thank you—just a little!" He was gone with a glimmering smile.

Cazale turned straight to Toye at the other door. "Well! Aren't you going too? You were near enough, you see! I'm an accessory all right—he dropped his voice—but I'd be principal if I could instead of him!"

But Toye had come back into the room, twinkling with triumph, even rubbing his hands. "You didn't see? You didn't see? I never meant to go at all; it was a bit of bluff to make him own up, and it did, too, bully!"

"You Broke Your Side of the Contract, Miss Blanche."

The couple gasped.

"You mean to tell me," cried Cazale, "that you believed my story all the time?"

"Why, I didn't have a moment's doubt about it!"

Cazale drew away from the chuckling creature and his crafty gleam. But Blanche came forward and held out her hand.

"Will you forgive me, Mr. Toye?"

"Sure, if I had anything to forgive. It's the other way around, I guess, and about time I did something to help." He edged up to the folding-door. "This is a two-man job, Cazale, the way I feel it out. Guess it's my watch on deck!"

"The other's the way to the police station," said Cazale decisively.

Toye turned solemn on the word. "It's the way to hell, if Miss Blanche will forgive me! This is more like the other place, thanks to you folks. Guess I'll leave the angels in charge!"

Angelic or not, the pair were alone at last; and through the doors they heard a quavering croak of welcome to the rather human god from the American machine.

"I'm afraid he'll never go back with you to the bush," whispered Blanche.

"Scruton?"

"Yes."

"I'm afraid, too. But I wanted to take somebody else out, too. I was trying to say so over a week ago, when we were talking about old Venus Potts. Blanche, will you come?"

(THE END.)

Enough Knowledge.

"Did you ever stop to think?" said the shopkeeper recently as he measured out half a peck of potatoes, "that these potatoes contain sugar, water and starch?"

"No, I didn't," replied the boy, "but I heard father say that you put peas and beans in your coffee, and about a pint of water in every quart of milk you sell."

ERIE ENTERTAINS STATE GATHERING

Annual Sunday School Convention Will Meet There.

OCTOBER 5, 6, 7, 8 THE DATES

Pennsylvania Greatest Sunday School State in the Union—Over Two Millions of Population Attend Sunday School.

The city of Erie, while still suffering from the terrible flood disaster during the last days of July, has bravely overcome this great handicap and is now making preparations to entertain the annual Convention of the Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association, an organization representing over 11,000 Sunday Schools. The Convention will be held October 5, 6, 7 and 8, 1915.

Pennsylvania is recognized to be the greatest Sunday School territory in the world. More people, young and old, go to Sunday School in the Key stone State than in any other State in the Union. One out of every four persons who come in contact with in Pennsylvania is identified with some Protestant, Evangelical Sunday School. The latest statistics show that twenty-seven per cent. of the State's population constitutes the Sunday School membership. Ohio

	No. of Schools	Enrollment
Penn'a	4,767,121	11,024,214,253
Ohio	4,767,121	5,583,113,157
New York	3,113,164	6,185,102,157
Illinois	5,638,591	7,179,964,236
Indiana	2,709,376	5,165,601,111

The above figures reveal the fact that a little more than one-eighth of the Sunday School strength of the nation is located in Pennsylvania.

Hon. John Wanamaker, Honorary President and Chairman of the Directors, Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Ass'n.

The Federation of the Sunday School forces of the State dates back to the year 1861, when the State Sunday School Association was born in Philadelphia, May 28, 29, 30.

STORE NEWS.

A Two Day Sale of Plumes

168 Fresh New Plumes to Be Sold on Wednesday and Thursday Only for $1.98 and $2.98

AS A FITTING INAUGURAL to the New Autumn Season in the Millinery Department, we have arranged this unusual sale of Ostrich Plumes. We planned this sale weeks ago, and while in the Eastern Markets, purchased a large quantity of plumes for both stores. By so doing, we commanded an exceptionally low price. The savings thus made we are going to pass right along to our customers. Plumes will be very much in evidence this season, and this is a rare opportunity for securing them.

—$6.50 VALUES—$1.98. —And what a chance this is for women who prefer to buy shapes and plumes and do their own trimming. Practically all of the most popular colors are here—White, Rose, Black, Brown, Blue, Purple, Grey, Yellow, Red, and Green.

—$1.00 VALUES—$1.98. —The same colors already mentioned, and please remember, this sale is for two days only—Wednesday and Thursday. Such low prices are apt to be misleading as to quality, but these plumes are actually worth more than double the small amount we ask for them.

Every Plume is of Genuine Ostrich

Two Days Worth Remembering in Connection With Our Fall School of Dressmaking

—On these days our instructress will remain in the dress goods department and will devote her time to assigning pupils to classes and to advising them regarding the most desirable materials, and the styles best suited for their respective figures.

—The rapid enrollment can only mean that the dressmaking school is going to be a big success. And it is small wonder when such an opportunity is offered to learn sewing at the very low price of $3.00 for a full course of six lessons.

Sewing Clubs Have Been Popular in other towns

—In other cities where Pictorial Review Dressmaking Schools have been held, women have formed clubs to attend the classes. A half dozen or more congenial women have arranged to attend on the same days and at the same hour. By so doing they make the classes an enjoyment as well as for the excellent instruction they afford.

—There is still plenty of time for you to be one of the fortunate hundred. The cost of the entire course is only $3.00. You may enroll any day at the Pattern Counter.

The Store will Soon Be All Aglow with Fall Fashions

—Almost every express which arrives brings something new to add its mite to the richness and completeness of our Autumn Stocks. Perhaps it's a dress or a suit, or it may be some additional hundreds of yards of new Fall Dress Goods. —Or yet again, it may be something for men—some new suits, hats, or shoes, or any one of the hundreds of things necessary to make our Fall showings without a peer in this section of the country.
